Pedonesi And Traci Blamed In Dukes Death

Coroner's Jury Finds That Officer Died Of Injuries Received At Their Hands

WITNESS TELLS OF SEEING FIGHT

Doctors Tell Of Injuries Received By Police Officer Which Resulted In Death

Responsibility for the death of Police Officer Robert H. Dukes was placed on Angelo Pedonesi and Sam Traci by a coroner's jury which heard the testimony of three witnesses at an inquest conducted by Coroner Orville Potter in city council chambers Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

After hearing the testimony, the jury came to a decision that "Officer Dukes came to his death in the New Castle hospital on February 13, 1937 of gangrene. We believe that this gangrene was the result of injuries received at the hands of Angelo Pedonesi and Sam Traci on Moravia street, New Castle, Pa., on February 9, 1937, about 3:30 p. m."

Grannis Saw Fight

Clarence Grannis, of 903 Moravia street, was the first witness examined by Coroner Potter. Grannis stated that he had left his work at the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Company at 3:28 p. m., and that he had gone directly to his home, which would be about two blocks away from the time office of the company. He said that his home is two doors south of Home street, on Moravia.

When arrived at his home, about 3:30 o'clock, he found three men in the yard between his house and the house next door, at 905 Moravia street, they were fighting, he said.

He said that he asked "What is going on here?" and one of the men turned around and wanted to know whose business it was. Grannis said that he told them that this was his yard and that if they wanted to fight, they would have to go out

Valley Forge Has Program

Birthday Of Washington Is Observed At Historic Site Today

MEMORIAL CHAPEL SCENE OF PROGRAM

By JOSEPH M. THOMPSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

VALLEY FORGE, Pa., Feb. 22.—Services in Valley Forge Memorial Chapel today marked the 205th anniversary of the birth of George Washington father of American independence, first president of the United States and idol of his troops, the Continentals.

On this historic site, the ragged homespun troops of Commander-in-chief Washington saw their blood ooze from unshod feet into jagged ice and snow. Here they starved, froze and died during the rigorus winter of 1777-1778, and here the courageous continentals gathered before Washington's headquarters to stage the first public celebration of his birthday.

Planting Trees

In the heart of the encampment grounds today WPA workers began planting the first lot of 1,000 trees, a project designed to add to the picturesque splendor of this shrine, which now little resembles the barren soil on which the emaciated troops huddled around campfires 159 years ago.

The trees — white pines, red maples, pin oaks, tulip populars, red buds and dogwood—will line the trails of the encampment.

Although no major ceremony was planned, thousands of Boy Scouts from surrounding counties journeyed here over the week-end and today for their annual observance of Gen. Washington's birthday, the first celebration of which took place at Valley Forge during the darkest hour of the War for Independence.

Only a few months before the Continental forces had suffered a series of reversals. General "Mad

CLOUDBURSTS ARE CAUSE OF FLOOD

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Ill. Feb. 22—A bitter cold brought renewed suffering to flood-ravaged southern Wisconsin and northwestern Illinois today as rain-swollen streams poured their flood waters into the Mississippi.

Rain of cloudburst proportions on Saturday night sent usually docile creeks and rivers raging over their banks on a wide front, inundating a number of communities and causing at least three deaths.

Three Fatalities

The fatalities were reported at Galena, Ill., where the Galena river back within its banks today, rose from a flood stage of 13 feet to 27.58 in eight hours, coursed through the business districts and caused damage estimated at $50,000. Spring And Winter In Tangle Sunday

High Winds Precede Sudden Change In Temperature Sunday Afternoon

Spring and winter tangled here Sunday with winter seemingly winning a knockout verdict. Almost every variety of weather on the calendar was noted during the day.

The morning opened balmy and springlike, and by noon the temperature had gotten up to 60 degrees, quite summer like. Then a period of April showers set in, followed by sweeping March-like winds. This was followed by snow squalls, rain and hail, with quite a downpour early in the evening, to be followed by a sudden drop in the temperature, the mercury falling to 24 degrees this morning.

The high winds did some damage in the district, but none of any serious nature. Dead branches were blown from trees, and loose materials were picked up and hurled about. Motorists out on the highway found driving conditions difficult because of the heavy wind.

Two Thousand Natives Arrested At Addis Ababa After Graziana Attack

(International News Service)

ROME, Feb. 22.—Addis Ababa was under virtual martial law today and 2,000 natives were under arrest as a result of last week's attempt to assassinate Viceroy Marshal Rodolfo Graziani.

Thirty thousand Fascist militiamen guarded the Ethiopian capital after a series of raids during which the suspects were rounded up.

General Aurelio Liotta, who was seriously wounded by the hail of hand grenades flung at Graziani Friday, had his leg amputated. Liotta is chief of the Italian air force in Ethiopia. His condition was reported grave.

Graziana, who was only slightly injured, was reported improving.

Premier Mussolini gave strict orders that suspects be brought to speedy trial. It was believed here that unless they can prove their innocense to the satisfaction of a Fascist tribunal, the 2,000 prisoners —or most of them—may be executed.

Meanwhile, it was announced officially two Italian columns clashed with Ethiopian rebels in the great lakes region. The rebels were defeated and dispersed and a number of their chiefs captured.

From Djibouti, French Somaliland, reports were received stating that incidents broke out between Italians and Ethiopians following the attempt on Graziani.

Nye And Copeland Condemn President's Proposals For Court

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
(International News Service)
Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 22—Although willing to provide promptly for the retirement of supreme court justices at the age of seventy, congress today opposed any hasty action on President Roosevelt's proposal to enlarge the nation's highest tribunal.

The senate judiciary committee met to approve the retirement act, which already has passed the house. Its early and favorable consideration by the senate appeared assured.

There was an entirely different attitude toward the proposal to enlarge the court, despite indirect rumors that the president desired immediate action. Both administration leaders and foes of the plan urged deliberate consideration.

Opposes Amy Haste

In the senate, Senator Ashurst, (D) of Arizona, judiciary chairman, said:

"I am opposed to haste or heat on the president's bill. I am opposed to hurry or worry over it. If the bill can't stand the test of time and debate, which I think it can, then I would oppose it."

In the house, Rep. Sumners (D), of Texas, judiciary chairman, said: "There is no need for haste."

Both friends and foes of the plan continued their radio and oratorical barrage. Over the week end, the opposition reported two new converts in the senate, when the independent Republican, Senator Nye, non-parti-

But she will maintain, Sandler declared that the marriage was never consummated and was illegal under the laws of Virginia, so that actually she was not married in 1933 when the radio violinist is alleged to have asked her to be his wife.

When the trial of Peggy's suit in New York supreme court was adjourned last Friday, she came here with Sandler to talk to her father, Heavey Taylor, and to prepare for the alteration of her testimony.

According to the information now in Sandler's hands, she ran away from a knitting mill where she was employed in 1925, and was married to a man named Taylor Guinn, who had a friend to swear that she was 21 years old.

Sit-Down Strike Still Deadlocked

North Chicago Strike Situation Is Little Changed Over Week-End

GOVERNOR SEEKS TO END IMPASSE

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—Sit-down strikers sat tight in the north Chicago plants of the Fansteel Metallurgical corporation today, while company officials stood pat on their refusal to negotiate until the strikers evacuate.

The impasse brought the prospect the strike will develop into the first national test of the rights of factory owners to hold and possess their properties, and the rights and privileges of sit-down strikers.

Governor's Effort Fails.

Efforts of Governor Henry Horner to bring the two factions together failed late yesterday, the company refusing to attend the peace conference and renewing its demand that he act to evict the sitters in compliance with a court order issued last Thursday.

The attempt of county officials to evacuate the property Friday failed when 125 deputy sheriffs armed with culbs and tear gas guns and bombs were repulsed by the strikers, who unloosed a barrage of metal parts and bottles of acid. There were only minor casualties.

Bitterly Disappointed.

Gov. Horner was bitterly disappointed at the failure of his peace efforts, and declared:

"I cannot understand this impasse. But both sides will be given every consideration if and when they decide to confer."

Martin Durkin of the state department of labor, Gov. Horner's representative at the strike scene, was to make another attempt to bring company officials and representatives of the strikers together today.

State Trooper Goes On Stand In Own Defense

Gunderman Tells Of Trouble At Fayette Courthouse With Monaghan

CHARGES ATTACK MADE UPON HIM

Threw Monaghan Over His Head By Jiu Jitsu Hold After Being Seized

By DICK SHANER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

COURTHOUSE, SOMERSET, Pa., Feb. 22.—Strapping six-foot State Trooper Stacey Gunderman, testifying in his own defense, today admitted hurling 64-year-old Frank C. Monaghan over his head by means of a jiu jitsu hold and then leaping on the elderly man.

Sergeant Knocked Out

Striving to save himself on murder charges for Monaghan's death, he demonstrated the hold to a startled jury, and Sergeant Pierce of the state police at Uniontown, who played the part of Monaghan in the demonstration, was completely knocked out.

Pierce lay unconscious for two minutes before the jury. The counsel tables had been cleared away and mats placed on the courtroom floor.

Pierce was led outside for air and quickly revived, none the worse for the thud.

It was one of the most amazing scenes ever to occur in a Pennsylvania courtroom.

Gunderman, under the questioning of John J. Duggan, Jr., chief defense counsel, asserted he was forced to subdue Monaghan in his own defense.

Charged He Was Attacked

He charged the elderly hotelkeeper, brought to the Bertillon room of the Fayette county courthouse for questioning about the slashing of Chief County Detective John C. Wall, attacked him from behind.

"I turned and started to walk across the room," Gunderman said. "He jumped on my back and I

ADMITS BRUTAL SLAYING

Confession In Coatesville Case

Youth Admits He Deliberately Ran Down Girl With Truck

HORRIBLE CRIME REVELATIONS MADE

(International News Service)

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Feb. 22.—Alexander Meyer, stocky 20-year-old farmboy, was held without bail today after confessing to what police described as one of the "most horrible and brutal slayings" ever written into the annals of Pennsylvania.

The former reformatory inmate signed a confession authorities said, in which he admitted that he deliberately ran down pretty 16-year-old Helen Moyer, Coatesville High School student, on February 11 after starting out "with the purpose of finding some girl—any girl."

Helen's battered body was recovered from a 75 feet deep well Saturday on an abandoned farm owned by Meyer's father, O. Jackson Meyer, a Philadelphia coal broker.

Inquest Tonight

Officials refused to reveal the place where an inquest will be held tonight because of the high feeling among friends of the dead girl. The case against Meyer, according to Philip J. Reilly, an assistant district attorney of Chester county, will be presented to the grand jury here on March 7.

In his new confession, as made public by Reilly, Meyer admitted:

"I started out with the purpose of finding some girl—any girl—running her down with the truck and then carrying her away and assaulting her. Finally I saw the Moyer girl. There was nobody in sight. So I got the truck up to about 45 miles an hour and deliberately drove into her.

"I got out, picked her up, and put her in the back of the truck. I thought she was dead. Then I started out for the farmhouse on the lower end of my father's property . . . I took the girl in there and attacked her. I had planned everything, and afterwards I carried her out to an abandoned well with about three feet of water at the bottom and I dropped her in."

The next day, the purported confession states, Meyer went back to the well and exploded two sticks of dynamite in the well "to cover up the body by crumbling the walls of the well in on it."

Meyer was sent to Huntingdon reformatory in 1934 for an indetermined period after he shot two Philadelphia girls when they repulsed his advances. He served 14 months and was released.

LOYALISTS ARE HOLDING FIRM

the Leftist front line, officials here stated, and Loyalist patrols surprised and dispersed Rebels who had taken up vanguard positions near Los Petrusos.

A Rebel communique issued at Salamanca, however, said the Eighth Insurgent division repelled an attack by Loyalists at La Robla, and that a Leftist attack on all positions on that front was defeated with enorous government losses, including annihilation of a complete battalion of Leftist militiamen.

On the Madrid front, the Insurgents claimed, Rebel troops repulsed a Loyalist attack in the West Park section with heavy losses.

Intense Activtity

A Barcelona announcement said thre was intense Insurgent activity in the extreme southern sector as part of the Rebel offensive on the Aragon front, but that government troops, showing great bravery, repulsed terrific Rebel attacks.

An official statement here said 30 persons were killed and more than 100 of the civil population wounded as result of an air raid on Albacete.

It also was claimed that Loyalists on the Jarama front captured positions "dominating one of the most important communication lines of the enemy".

Government planes, swooping on Insurgent trenches in a synchronizing attack with Loyalist infantry formed the terminating factor in heavy fighting on the Jarama front, authorities here said.

Under a barrage of artillery on the Rebel positions, Leftists, aided by tanks, advanced along a five-mile front in the neighborhood of San Martin De La Vega. The Insurgents put up a vigorous defense, but after two hours fighting the government troops took the Rebel trenches.

After Loyalist planes sprayed the Rebels with machinegun bullets, hand-to-hand fighting ensued and the Rebels finally retired to their supporting positions.

The Isle of Man Parliament, claimed to be the oldest in the world, has begun its winter session, and the members, all of whom receive less than $5 a week and traveling expenses, are busy with a mass of legislation.

Taylor Building Case Being Heard

In court room number one today, with Judge W. Walter Braham sitting, the complaint of the City of New Castle against the heirs of Frederick Taylor was opened.

The complaint is that the building now under erection on Grove street is a nuisance and should be abated. Some weeks ago a wall collapsed and killed Mr. Taylor. The city claims that the structure is unsound and should be removed.

To prove their contention that the building is of unsound construction the city called a number of witnesses. One of the chief witnesses was James M. Mercer, a brick contractor who testified that the walls were not constructed properly, that the pilasters were not tied in properly and that the structure was unsafe.

The case will last through most of the day.

VALLEY FORGE HAS PROGRAM

Anthony" Wayne's men were surprised at Paoli and narrowly escaped being massacred; at Chadd's Ford an entire division had been routed. The retreat to Valley Forge followed these disasters.

Tribute To Washington

The long winter was nearing its end when the tattered band of liberty seekers gathered bare-headed and knee-deep in snow before the quarters of their beloved chief to serenade him with "Yankee Doodle" and other tunes. Washington was 56 years old that day. With hands nearly frozen and faces pinched with the cold the soldiers paid tribute to the figure on the steps of the little stone house, now the mecca for thousands of visitors every year.

It was such devotion as this that moved Washington to write:

"Naked and starving as they are, we cannot enough admire the incomparable patience and fidelity of the soldiery".

Fluttering today above Washington's headquarters is a replica of the orginal emblem of the general. It is a blue flag with 13 six pointed white stars arranged in a circle to represent the original states.

The troops, numbering 11,000, including 3,000 unfit for duty, moved onto Valley Forge December 19, 1777. The ill-fed, half-clothed army remained at this spot, 15 miles from the center of Philadelphia, then the capital of the colonies, until June 19, 1778.

sanite, of North Dakota, and the independent Democrat, Copeland, of New York, condemned the plan.

Copeland Warns

Copeland warned the constitutional guarantees against religious bigotry and racial persecution were effective only so long as the judiciary remained independent of outside influence. He agreed with the social objectives of the president but warned the plan "to pack the court" would create more "havoc than good."

Nye joined Senator Wheeler (D) of Montana, noted liberal and friend of the president, in urging a constitutional amendment, giving congress the power to overrule supreme court decisions following an intervening election. He said the court was not sacred and the constitution was subject to change "but the changes should be made only by the people.'

"Let People Speak"

Touching on the barrage of influence directed against congress, Nye added:

"Threats, political influence, propaganda do not offer the best method of inducing congressional action. Let the people speak is an older, better, safer and more decent rule of procedure."

In Indianapolis, Rep. Pettengill, independent Democrat of Indiana, charged the president with violating his 1936 platform, in which the party pledged itself to "seek clarifying amendments if more power were needed by congress to enact the new deal program. The "deadly flaw" in the president's plan, he said, was this:

"It is more power than a good man should want or a bad man should have."

SALEM LEADER DIES

(International News Service)

SALEM, O., Feb. 22.—A heart attack was blamed by the coroner today for the death of C. C. Gibson, 56, industrialist and "first citizen" of Salem. His body was found by his butler in a water-filled bathtub at his home.

One of the most surprising things to many patrons is that Leyde Funeral Service, including use of the funeral home and pipe organ, costs no more than any other. You are welcome to come and investigate.

FAITH

NEIGHBORS

No two funeral directors include the same number of articles in their prices which they make to a family for a complete funeral. Neither does any one funeral director make exactly the same contract with every family. The wishes of the family and the different articles needed to properly take care of their needs, have a lot to do with th prices made at time of selection of funeral furnishings.

Therefore, when a neighbor comes in and begins to tell you what funeral directors should furnish, pay no attention to them. Just have FAITH that nine times out of ten, your funeral director will furnish you a great deal more than he agreed to.

WE DO NOT LEND OR RENT OUR CHAIRS. THEY ARE FOR FUNERAL WORK ONLY

HAVE YOU THE UTTERMOST FAITH IN YOUR FUNERAL DIRECTOR?

HERE'S HOW TO HELP END A COLD QUICKER

The 3 Minute VapoRub Massage

Massage VapoRub briskly on the throat, chest and back (between and below the shoulder blades). Then spread it thick over the chest and cover with warmed cloth.

It takes so little time—it does so much—this 3-Minute VapoRub Massage!

Almost before you finish rubbing, VapoRub starts to bring relief two ways at once—two direct ways:

1. Through the Skin. VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice or plaster.

2. Medicated Vapors. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—about 18 times a minute —direct to the irritated air-passages.

This combined poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation—helps break congestion. While the little patient relaxes into comfortable sleep, VapoRub keeps right on working. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Avoids Risk of Stomach Upsets

This safe, external treatment cannot possibly upset the stomach, as constant internal "dosing" is so apt to do. It can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

QUALITIES OF WASHINGTON

WHAT were some of the principal traits of character that made George Washington, whose memory we all celebrate on February 22, such a consummate figure?

One such quality was his habit of thorough work. At the age of 16 years, he was appointed a public surveyor, and he did work of lasting value in surveying a vast tract of land in the then wild Allegheny mountains. Before accepting any task, he always informed himself thoroughly about the duties of that job. To qualify himself to survey all that wild land, he must have studied through his limited school days with a degree of earnestness which the average modern child does not manifest.

Another great quality of Washington was his sense of justice and fairness. Political parties soon started to form when he became president, but he refused to ally himself with either of them. He called representatives of the two great groups into his cabinet. He never could have commanded the support of men of these differing and contending factions and elements unless it was felt that he was disposed to be fair and just to all.

It is not desirable today that men and women should refuse to ally themselves with political parties. But if we can catch that spirit of fairness and justice that made Washington what he was, the bitterness of party and sectional strife will die out, and Government will be representative of the people rather than of an ambitious executive.

DISTINGUISHED JOURNALISTS

When Emperor Haile Selassie, of Ethiopia, ascended the rostrum of the League of Nations Assembly at Geneva last June to plead for support of his country's struggle to maintain its independence against the Fascist conquerors, the Italian journalists in the gallery started hissing, booing and catcalling. Swiss police hustled them out of the room and the Society of Journalists Accredited to the League adopted resolutions condemning the Italians' action as unworthy of the profession and apologizing to Haile Selassie and the president of the assembly.

But these intensely nationalistic journalists are not to go without the reward of patriotism. For their performance in booing Haile Selassie they have been given the Bugatta Prize in recognition of their "distinguished journalistic activity." The award is an interesting reflection of the peculiar standards of excellence that govern the profession under the Fascist reign.

POWER OF SUGGESTION

This has been characterized as the age of tolerance. Toleration implies an open mind, the absence of blind bigotry, possession of the power to reason, and a willingness to hear both sides to every question before forming one's own conclusions. It follows, therefore, that modern society, being more tolerant of the opinions and manners of others, should be more open to suggestion. It is probably a fact that the great mass of Americans was never before more subject so to suggestion.

Everybody has heard of the power of suggestion and everybody has seen it demonstrated through the medium of political reform, advertising and slang catchphrases. A specious slogan can win acclaim for a creed or cause previously universally rejected and obviously fallacious. Than the catch phrase there is no more effective camouflage for the spurious.

Suggestion plays a most important part in business. Advertising, show windows and show cases owe their origin and usefulness to the power of suggestion. Contrary to a popular impression, the merchant advertises his wares to create a desire for possession among those who see them and it is through suggestion that the desire is created.

MARRIAGE PLUS CAREER

Sophomores at Barnard have just heard Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve urge "careers" for every one of them. This is the considered advice of one who for twenty-six long years has been guide, counselor and friend of every girl who has passed in and out of the college. It is not Miss Gildersleeve's thought that college women generally should seek to rival men in every field of business or professional activity. The sort of career she advises has just as much validity if not engaged in for money.

Marriage for most of the graduates is what "we expect," says this sagacious woman, "but it is a terrible thing to arrive at the age of 45 with nothing to do except to become a burden on your children." And for "burden" in many instances it is possible to substitute "bore." What Miss Gildersleeve means is that every educated woman should find for herself and pursue diligently some line of activity—and this implies much more than an avocation to while away idle houre and be dropped at will—that will have a persisting interest.

Miss Gildersleeve, who last November received the annual award for eminent achievement from the American Woman's Association, is noted for possessing and instilling a personal sense of responsibility in society. She is a straight and vigorous thinker.

DUCKING THE SUPERMAN

It is a little disconcerting to hear from so distinguished a scientist as Dr. Frederick Tilney that the human brain is only a quarter of the way along in its development, though it has been evolving for millions of years. George Bernard Shaw, of course, pointing to "Man and Superman," can say "I told you so." Our own reaction is relief that we shall not be here to experience the finished product.

Most of us have friends and acquaintances who know so much, and persist in sharing their gems of wisdom, that they are well-nigh unbearable. Gratitude just does not well up in the hearts of those who get daily instruction from such founts of learning. Often what begins as a little murmuring stream becomes a flood against which even the levees of indifference or feigned inattention cannot prevail. These high priests of learning pontificate on every occasion they can find, and even make some of the occasions.

When the human brain has attained a development four times as effective as at the present, these cognoscenti will have to be put in revised litanies, along with battle, murder and sudden death, as instrumentalities of suffering from which Heaven in its mercy will grant deliverance. If only he could be assured capitalism would persist down the ages, some philanthropist of the present ought to create an endowment foundation, increasing in value by compound interest, to construct, say a billion years hence, sound-proof refuges from the know-it-alls.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

WASHINGTON HAD FAMILY WORIES.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S father as Augustine Washington, who married Jane Butler and had four children. Only Lawrence and Augustine lived beyond childhood. Jane Washington died in 1728, and the father was married again two years later, this time to Mary Ball. She became the mother of George Washington, her eldest child, 1732. He had three younger brothers, Samuel, John and Charles; and two sisters, Elizabeth and Mildred. Mildred died in infancy.

George Washington never had any children of his own, but he was a very kind and judicious stepfather. He married a widow with two young children—Jackey and Mildred Custis. Mildred was an epileptic. Her parents used every known means to cure her and Washington grieved over her death.

Jackey never amounted to much, although he was given rich opportunities. His stepfather sent him to Columbia university, then King's college. But he did not study well there, and when his sister died at the age of 14 Jackey was brought home to comfort his mother, most of the trip being made on horseback. Of Jackey his stepfather once wrote to a famous tutor at Annapolis:

"He has little or no knowledge of arithmetic, and is totally ignorant of the mathematics."

Tutor Writes Washington

Jonathan Boucher, a tutor of Jackey, wrote Washington in 1770:

"I mean his love of Ease and Love of Pleasure. Pleasure of a kind exceedingly uncommon at his years. I must confess to you I never did in my life know a youth so exceedingly indolent, or so surprisingly voluptuous. . . .

"Were all those who have the Care and Direction of Children as attentive to their real interest, we should not have so many Complaints of Children spoiled by Parental Indulgence." It always worried Washington that his stepson did not have better habits of work and conduct.

At the age of 14, George Washington made a surveying trip in the wilderness, far from home. He wrote in his diary March 11, 1748, (notice spelling, capitalization, etc.)

"Rain'd till about two oClock and Clear'd when we were agreeably surprised at y. sight of a thirty odd Indians coming from War with only one Scalp . . . of whom we had a War Dance there manner of Dancing is as follows Viz They clear a Large Circle and make a Great Fire in y. middle then seat themselves around it y. WAITING FOR A MOOD

I SHUDDER when I think of all the time I've wasted waiting for the right mood.

Waiting until I felt "just right". Waiting for an "inspiration". Expecting something to happened by just "waiting".

The time I've spent in that wasteful, futile routine would run into days, into weeks, might even add up to years.

Some men and women procrastinate—and anybody will admit that procrastination is a grievous sin.

Well, waiting for the right mood is just as bad. It's taking what everybody admits is a sin and calling it a virtue.

I know all about it. I'm an authority on that subject. . . . Hundreds of times I've come to the job feeling fine. Full of energy. With an idea in mind that needed only a little thought and elaboration to make it ready for the typewriter, for the linotype machine, for the paper.

Then I smoked a cigaret and did a number of little chores that didn't need to be done right then, and talked trivality to half a dozen people. . . . And then complained that I wasn't in the mood to write that article and cursed my luck and damned the fate that made me do what I was doing—and why didn't I do something else that didn't depend on "inspiration".

Well, I know better now. I know that if I'm not "in the mood" now, I can WORK myself into it. I can write whether I feel like it or not. It may not be good writing, but it WILL be better than nothing. It will have something, and I can throw it away if I don't like it.

I don't have sympathy for myself any more, and I haven't sympathy for anybody who proudly complains that he has to "wait for an inspiration". . . . That's a confession of weakness.

Hints On Etiquette

It is the complete absence of ceremony that makes the informal dinner so enjoyable. Guests enter the dining room in little groups, or saunter in side by side, without thought of precedence.

Sun sets tonight 5:43. Sun rises tomorrow 6:44.

The "position wanted" of a Cleveland newspaper recently carried this ad: Young Man-unintelligent, lazy, can't do anything, but willing to try. Box 7423, Press.

There's nothing like being frank and this gent is that at least. We'll wager he has a lot more on the ball than the young man who is inclined to boast about his abilities.

Out in Missouri the other day, a woman getting some pumpkin ready to make a pie, found a fibrous lump of matter and on investigating discovered a gold ring. There were no scars or deformities on the skin of the pumpkin to indicate that it had been forced in from the ouside. Some men would be willing to plant a gold ring in a pumpkin if they could only get their wives to make pies like mother used to make.

MODERN SLAVERY

Willie: "Say, Pa, what does it mean, when they say 'a slave to fashion?"

Pa: "Why, that's a man who has a wife and two or three daughters, my son."

An enterprising Florida paper is running a column of news about trailer people. The only trouble about that is that those kind of people generally don't stop long enough in one spot to read it.

The state capitol building at Little Rock, Ark., is being overrun by rats, Secretary of State C. G. Hall claims. That wouldn't be the first time that rats have hung around a state capitol.

Making marriage successful is easy. All it takes is one who has ideas and one to say: "Suit yourself, my dear."

Any indication that times are getting better is that children are swallowing bigger coins. A California baby swallowed a quarter the other day. Now, who'll make it a half?

"In swing" says an expert, "you are guided by the music, but ignore it." We get you: something like obeying the law.

Si Larkin, who has six marriageable daughters, calls his front parlor the mush-room.

As a nation, we're pretty clean—thanks to the tax collectors.

Our modern slang is not so modern after all. Shakespeare comed the expression "Its a Riot" in the Merry Wives of Windsor, which also contains the expression "Oh be yourself." It's almost time for the return of that old expression, "I love my wife, but oh you kid."

According to the American Medical Association, drunkenness is the leading cause of insanity. That ought to make a lot of old crabs sober up, but they'll probably be too drunk to read this.

Conscience is that little thing that a lot of married men pay no attention to when it tells them that some one is sure to find them out.

"Don't look at this awful room!" means, "observe how nicely I have it cleaned up."

An Ohio woman owns a hen that waits every morning until the kitchen door is opened and then marches into the bedroom and lays an egg under the bed. With a little training, that bird should be able to drop it right in the skillet.

The weather bureau now has a balloon which will ascend 20 miles into the stratosphere to record weather changes. That will be a big help knowing what the weather is like 20 miles above us.

We can't be neutral. If we require belligerents to carry their own purchases, we side with the nation that has the most ships.

JUST AS WE SUPPOSED

A widow visited a spiritualistic medium, who satisfactorily produced the deceased husband for a little chinfest.

"Dear John," the widow questioned eagerly, 'are you happy now?"

"I am very happy," the spook assured her.

"Happier than you were on earth with me?" the widow continued.

"Yes," John asserted, "I am happier now."

"Oh, do tell me, John," the widow cried rapturously, "what is it like in heaven?"

"Heaven?" the spook snapped, 'I ain't in heaven."

Americans as a race, say scientists are constantly growing taller If this keeps up, we'll be the world's best dressed nation, since all of us will need to buy new clothes that fit.

Thousands of new inventions have been perfected within the last few years but the world still looks forward to a radio receiving set which will automatically tune out the commercial announcements.

What mystifies most Europeans is how America can continue to be the richest and happiest nation on the face of the eatrth without the beneficient supervision of a single dictator.

THE SCOUNDREL

"I left a quart of whiskey in my berth this morning and forgot it when I left the train," a passenger complained to the conductor.

"You did?" exclaimed the conductor. "Then you are the fellow to go bail out the porter. I wondered where he got it."

New York and California will stage world fairs in 1939. This should greatly stimulate air travel with fan and bubble dancers attempting to play both shows.

Quite appropriate in advertising slogans, we believe, is this one seen by a reader in a beauty shop window: Many a bachelorship has been wrecked by a permanent wave!"

Being a Washington columnist is easy. You just read another Washington columnist and argue back at him.

Maybe one reason why prohibition failed was because too many people practiced glass hatred.

Still, strikers aren't the only ones who must sacrifice earnings to get "justice." Look what a lawyer costs you.

Wouldn't it be cheaper to consolidate all Federal publicity activities in a "Department of Ballyhoo and Whitewash?"

Then there was the major general who became greatly incensed when he received a letter marked "private."

Remember the fellow who traded his birthright for a mess of pottage? Well, that explains what became of State rights.

Strikes are becoming more like war. The bigger the scrap, the fewer people know what they are fighting for

"Down with the Supreme Court" is misleading. It really means "Down with the rules that get in our way."

Americanism: Ignoring every law that displeases us; hoping to keep out of future wars by making good resolutions when we aren't excited.

Fighting China may ruin the Japs. They won't know how to act when they meet enemies who show the front side.

By FRANCINE MARKEL

By FRANCINE MARKEL

BEFORE you invest money and waste your efforts choosing wallpaper with an emphatic pattern, you had better hold a few strips of it upon the surface to be covered and thus get the general effect.

A design that seems attractive in the sample book may become an eyesore when seen in proximity to the environment which may clash with it throughout its long period of use. It will be far from pleasant to be forced to look, day after day, at a unlivable design or a too-loud color scheme which you cannot, for economical reasons, discard for a new choice.

Too Many Pictures

Dear Miss Markel—In my living room I have a small kidney-shaped desk, on which I have placed a picture in an easel frame. On the wall over the desk I have a large picture. I think this corner is a little heavy on pictures, although I do need something on the wall and like the picture on the desk. Can you give me some advice? GRATEFUL.

Answer—Why not place a mirror on the wall instead of the picture? Or if you prefer to keep the picture there, put a small lamp on the desk if you must have something.

JUST WORDS

Perhaps it is common down in the "land of cotton" but in the North, broken glass as a delicacy is unknown. Our Southern brothers appear to be more inventive and to have more of the artist's idea as to color schemes.

One, we will call John Joyce, of George, so loved and honored one we will call Dick Snively that he put into the collards greens and corn bread of said Dick bits of this new dainty—broken glass. Dick, however, did not partake of the treat. Evidently, resenting the imputation that he had a chicken's gizzard rather than a stomach, he had Mr. Joyce, the thoughtful giver, arrested on the charge of assault with intent to murder.

There is no information as to whether John felt himself a benefactor of society or merely a good practical joker. Personally, we are glad that he lives in Georgia. One would think that broken glass would leave cutting impressions on the human system, and that the mere attempt to feed a brother man such a morsel would amount to an assault with the evident intent to murder; but the Court of Appeals of Georgia gravely disagrees with us. It says:

"The present indictment charges that the accused put broken glass into the intended victim's food with intent that he should eat it, and did thereby make an assault with intent to kill. There is no averment that the broken glass was administered to the intended victim, or that he partook of any of the food in which the glass was contained. This being so, the indictment did not set forth the offense of assault with intent to murder."

The World At A Glance

Likes Names To Dramatize Events.
Plodder Makes No Way In Public.
Sport World Is Suffering Now.

By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Columnist

OUR LIFE MOVEMENTS continue to be dramatized by personalities.

That observation once more is reiterated following a "listening" tour.

People talk in personalities. That is a part of human frailty.

In public life today in the United States it is Roosevelt vs. the opposition.

Other personalities creep in, or leap across the sky. Senator Robert La Follette's investigation of spying on workers by large corporations, Senator Burton K. Wheeler's proposed court amendment to the constitution, Governor Frank Murphy's automobile strike truce, all appeal to the public imagination.

The mere plodder makes no headway in the public imagination. One must strike sensationally.

President Roosevelt is the greatest headline maker since Lincoln. He strikes suddenly, sensationally following periods of seeming inactivity.

OTHER NAMES

Hitler, Mussolini, the Duke of Windsor, all strike the imagination.

Stalin not so much, although those who attack him try to dramatize him. He remains, to the world, an unknown factor.

In the movie world, it is remarkable how Greta Garbo, purely through her superb artistry, holds on. She, probably more than any other Hollywood star, is a world figure. Charles Laughton also has a large international following.

American matinee idols are not world idols—that is, to the degree they are here. Styles of romantic lovers differ in each land. A Robert Taylor is not entirely acceptable in France or Germany. Nor would a French or a German or an Italian matinee idol be entirely acceptable in America.

SHAKESPEARE

Shakespeare still is the best-known name in the theater. That seems a trite expression. Yet every time that this is proved, the theatrical world pauses in amazement. The amazement this year is over "Hamlet" and "Richard II". How many people know that Shakespeare wrote a play on Richard II How many people know who Richard II was?

SPORT WORLD

The sport world is suffering at the moment from a lack of dramatic names. A new Dempsey would be worth millions.

Joe Louis is no Dempsey in attractive power, nor a Tunney.

Even the baseball world is suffering from lack of a dramatic name. Hope is expressed for Bob Feller, 18-year-old Cleveland pitcher. Chances are that this hope will not be realized.

The best attraction at the moment is a girl, Sonja Henie, world champion skater, who came to America to star in pictures, and remained to "clean up" in exhibitions in large cities. She is doing turnaway business.

How Sunday Schools Now Stand In Contest

A banner day was Sunday, February 21, in the "Gold Rush" for every one of the eleven Sunday schools accumulated gold nuggets for a total of 397, and the total attendance of the Sunday schools competing was 12% higher than the average attendance for 1936. As yesterday was "Missionary Society Day" the ladies can claim credit for the splendid showing, as there was more gold nuggets accumulated yesterday than the previous two Sundays. The total number of gold nuggets for the first three weeks of the campaign which closes Easter Sunday, March 28, totals 717.

The Madison Avenue Christian Sunday school has furnished the figures for the first three Sundays and has entered the campaign.

While the East Brook M. E. Sunday school is not competing with the New Castle schools, but nevertheless has made a remarkable record. The average attendance last year was 20, and last Sunday the attendance was 52. At the beginning of the campaign this was the smallest Sunday school in Wilmington district, but this may not be true if the growth continues.

U. A. W. Plans To Make Demands On Chrysler Corp.

(International News Service)

DETROIT, Feb. 22.—While hundreds of automobile workers suffered from effects of a mysterious tear gas barage which turned a union rally into a riot last night, the United Automobile Workers Union today planned to demand sole recognition from the Chrysler Motor Cororation.

Release of the tear gas just as the rally of several thousands unionists and their sympathizers started in the state fairgrounds coliseum led to a riot in which George Vargo, 22, a motor company employe and an amateur photographer, was badly beaten and his camera smashed.

Two men with Vargo escaped the wrath of the crowd by fleeing through an upper gallery and over the roof of the building. The crowd had suspected Vargo's flashlight bulbs might have contained tear gas but police said after a checkup that Vargo had nothing to do with the episode.

threw him on the floor and jumped on him. I threw him over my head with a jiu jitsu hold."

Gunderman said when he jumped his knees struck Monaghan in the vicinity of the chest and ribs.

As he attempted to lift the fallen man by the left arm and right ear, he explained, Monaghan "kneed" him in the groin.

"What did you do then?" asked John J. Duggan, Jr., chief defense counsel."

"I hit him right on the jaw," said the 25-year-old trooper. "I believe I hit him only twice. I couldn't say for sure. He staggered back and slumped down."

Fainted and Fell

Gunderman explained he took Monaghan to the lavatory, attempting to revive the nearly unconscious man by throwing cold water on his face, and as he turned away for some towels, Monaghan fainted and fell on the marble floor, he testified. Gunderman said he lifted him then to the cot and attempted artificial respiration by pressing down on the ribs.

He saw blood, he said, but he did not know from where it came. Monaghan was breathing heavily, "making a kind of a gurgle".

And it was thus, Gunderman explained, that Monaghan suffered the 11 broken ribs, the fractured nose, the splintered jawbone, the 50 or more abrasions, and the numerous lacerations and bruises found on his body.

Gunderman asserted positively that Monaghan wore no underwear the night of September 12 when he died. The commonwealth charges the underwear was used to wipe up the blood from the bertillon room and then was disposed of.

Recess of 20 Minutes

Court was recessed for 20 minutes when chief defense counsel John J. Duggan, Jr., called for a mat so Gunderman might demonstrate the Jiu Jitsu hold he took on Monaghan.

The trooper was the third witness called today. He said he was in the Uniontown State police barracks the night of September 12 when he was ordered to investigate the cutting of John Wall at Hogsett. He and his fellow-trooper, Anthony Sanute, drove almost into Connellsville and couldn't find any trace of Monaghan. Then they drove to Uniontown and first saw Monaghan at the police station.

In the police station, Monaghan snarled, he said:

"'Who the —— are you?'"

"I'm a State policeman," he said he replied.

Then Monaghan said "Something about he paid more taxes and didn't give a damn who I was."

District Attorney James A. Reilly came into the police station and took Monaghan to the bertillon room where the commonwealth contends he was beaten to death.

With Reilly were Assistant County Detective Wilbert (Patsy) Minerd; Sanute, Joe Dickson, a newspaper reporter; Louis Ford, a negro patrolman, and Charles Malik, night chief of police.

Minerd said he wanted Monaghan's tie and shirt for evidence because they were covered with blood. Monaghan took off his coat himself, he said. Minerd helped him take off his shirt and tie, the trooper said.

"State whether or not Monaghan had underwear on," asked Duggan.

"He absolutely had none on," the trooper replied.

Everyone left the bertillon room except Sanute, Monaghan, and himself, he said.

"You could tell he had been drinking some," said Gunderman of Monaghan.

Objects To Statement

"He didn't seem to be quarrelsome or in a good humor."

Margiotti objected because this called for a conclusion on the part of the witness and Supreme Court Justice George W. Maxey ordered the answer stricken from the records.

"Monaghan was very reluctant to answer any questions," Gunderman continued.

Assistant District Attorney Harry W. Byrne brought an alkalizing drink to the door. After some persuasion, he said, he got Monaghan to drink it.

"I was questioning him, then decided to give him a shower bath," Gunderman said. I told him to take the rest of his clothes off and he did himself."

He wouldn't go into the shower, at first, Gunderman said. He remonstrated quite a bit, saying, "He couldn't stand that cold water."

He kept saying, "Oh," when he was under the cold water, Gunderman related.

He kept Monaghan under the water about two or three minutes, Gunderman said, then he brought him out. He dried himself, Gunderman continued, sat down on the bed, and put on his pants and socks.

He started to question Monaghan again, Gunderman said, about Wall's cutting.

"He wouldn't admit anything to us," Gunderman charged.

Monaghan denied having a knife, he denied seeing Reilly when he was stopped on the road near Hogsett, and he denied seeing Wall.

"Sanute told him, 'if you won't tell us the truth, we'll go up and get Florence Dean, your sweetheart, and get her to tell us,'" Gunderman said.

As Sanute left the room, Gunderman said, he gave him orders to fingerprint and photograph Monaghan.

"I said, 'I'm going to fingerprint you and put you in jail'.

"I turned and started to walk across the room. He jumped on my back and I threw him to the floor and jumped on him. I threw him over my head with a jiu jitsu hold."

He did this in self defense, Gunderman said, because Monaghan first jumped on him and grabbed him around the neck.

Trying To Subdue Him.

Gunderman maintained he knew no bones were broken.

"I had no intention of hurting him," he said. "I merely was trying ot subdue him."

At the time, he said, he knew Monaghan by reputation only, not personally. He did not know, he said, but he had heard "he was a dangerous man".

Reciting the details of the struggle on the floor, he said the two men rolled around fighting. When Monaghan put its arms on his neck, he shut off his wind for a moment or so. There was no one in the room but he and Monaghan.

Duggan asked him how long a period of time elapsed from the time Monaghan first wrapped his arm around Gunderman's neck until he applied artificial respiration on the bed.

"Possibly 15 minutes," the trooper said.

He said he was there when Coroner S. A. Baltz pronounced Monaghan dead and later helped carry the undertaker's basket with Monaghan's body in it partially out of the room.

The body was placed onto the stretcher across the middle, he said.

"But, part of the body absolutely did fall off of it," Gunderman said. "The head struck the floor."

Gunderman said he went back to the Bertillon room, got a mop from Byrne and mopped up water on the floor which had seeped out of the shower. He said the shower had been left running for some time.

Probably Final Week

Courthouse, Somerset, Pa., Feb. 22—Handsome State Trooper Stacey Gunderman steeled himself today for the ordeal of taking the stand in his own defense against the charge that he led a mass "third degree" attack on Frank C. Monaghan, 64, that killed the elderly hotelkeeper.

His task made all the more difficult by testimony already given by four of his 11 co-defendants, Gunderman himself was to bring the defense to a close as his trial started its third and probably final week.

And waiting to subject him to a bitter cross-examination was Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, special prosecutor in the case, who drew down upon himself an acrimonious denunciation from John J. Duggan, Jr., chief defense counsel over the week-end.

Charges False Issue

Duggan, excoriated the attorney general for seeking to inject insinuations in the trial that important papers were taken from Monaghan's pockets and later disappeared. Duggan said the papers had no connection with the case and were given to Monaghan's son, Frank Jr., by the Uniontown police who have a receipt for them.

To this Margiotti quickly retorted:

"The commonwealth has everything else that was taken from Monaghan when the police searched him—keys, pocketbooks and so on, but the papers are missing."

Gunderman's defense was to be as Duggan outlined it to the jury. He was to assert that Monaghan fell in a marble shower bath in the Bertillon room of the Fayette county courthouse as he sought to "sober him up" for questioning about the slashing of Chief County Detective John C. Wall. The state trooper was expected to follow the six other men in the case indicted for murder.

REPAIRING STEPS AT POST OFFICE

Workmen of The Bertolini Bros. company of Youngstown today began repairing the damaged steps of the stairway just inside the South Jefferson street entrance to the post office. Officials blocked of the damaged steps when the marble treads began cracking up many months ago.

Postmaster Richard A. Steen said today:

"The new marble steps will be placed in both the Jefferson street and the Washington street stairway inside the front entrance to the building. The work had been delayed, but within a short time the condition will have been improved."

The Youngstown firm's bid for the repair work was the lowest submitted and it was chosen by the government to do the repair job. Two workmen started the job today.

Coach Sutherland And Harrison In "Showdown"

PITTSBURG, Feb. 22—If anybody is going to quit at Pitt, it will be Don W. Harrison, the athletic director, and not Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland, the head football coach, the tight-lipped Scot grid mentor asserted today.

Sutherland will demand a "showdown" with University officials over Harrison, he said through a friend, and he feels confident he will win.

The breach between the two, said to have been smouldering since the Rose Bowl game on New Year's day in California, was brought out into the open today when a New York sports columnist said Sutherland was ready to quit and go elsewhere. He has been head coach at Pitt for 13 years and has devoleped some of the finest elevens in the country.

Plan To Enlarge Court Will Get Public Hearing

Set Date Of March 9 For Hearing On Roosevelt's Court Proposal

MOVE TO DELAY HEARING FAILS

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Public hearings on President Roosevelt's proposal to enlarge the supreme court will begin March 9, the senate judiciary committee decided today after favorably reporting the house bill, authorizing supreme court justices to retire at the age of 70.

Several attempts were made by committee members to change the house bill but all amendments were defeated. The bill finally was reported by a vote of 13 to 5. The dissenters were Senators Pittman of Nevada, King of Utah, Burke of Nebraska, Democrats, and Borah of Idaho and Steiwer of Oregon, Republicans.

Will Draft Report.

Senators McCarran (D) of Nevada, chairman of a sub-committee that handled the retirement bill, announced he would draft a report this afternoon and file it with the senate tomorrow.

"I hope to get senate action on the bill this week," said McCarran.

The committee's decision to hold hearings on the president's bill, which would give him an opportunity to appoint six new justices to the supreme court if none of the present members resign, was reported to have been unanimous. So, too, was the fixing of March 9 to start hearings, although there was considerable discussion before this date was chosen.

Vote Down Delays.

Two efforts were made to delay the hearings until a later date First March 21 was proposed and then March 15, but both were voted down. Then came the unanimous decision on March 9.

It was announced proponents of the president's plan would be heard first. After that, the opponents will be given their inning.

Meanwhile, Speaker Bankhead announced that initial action on the president's legislation by the senate would have the "full approval of house leaders". He said it was "generally understood" that senate action would precede any taken by the house.

Recover Bodies Of Mother And Son At Philadelphia

Police Believe Both Were Shot To Death By Man Who Later Committed Suicide

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22.—From the same muddy bottom of the oily Delaware river from which police recovered the body of Mrs. Louise Adair, 24, on Sunday, grappling irons today retrieved the corpse of the woman's 18-months-old son, James, Jr.

Police believe the mother and infant were shot to death by Charles Smart, an ex-convict and coal heaver, who once lured the woman from her husband's home here. His failure to regain her love after she had become reconciled with her husband, a WPA worker, led Smart to shoot them both and heave their bodies into the river, according to the police theory.

The suspected double slaying occurred early last Tuesday morning, a few hours before Smart's body, with a self-inflicted bullet in his brain, was found on the end of pier 114, south wharves. The fact that the mother took the child with her last Monday night when she kept a rendezvous with Smart convinced authorities she kept the tryst with the intention of telling the former prisoner that her "love for him was dead".

Fail To Identify Seaplane Found On Ocean Floor

(International News Service)

CAPE MAY, N. J., Feb. 22.—The identity of a seaplane's wrecked and rusty frame, dragged from the ocean floor by a fishing boat, puzzled U. S. coastguard officers here today.

Lieut. R. L. Burke, commandant of the air station here, after studying records of all planes that disappeared along the East Atlantic coastline said the wreckage was still unidentified.

Stripped of all but the skeleton ironwork of the fuselage the wreck lay in 480 feet of water, about 80 miles southeast of Five Fathom lightship, anchored 15 miles east of Cape May.

The plane was pulled to the surface in the nets of a fishing craft. Coastguard officials expressed belief the wreck may have drifted in the gulf stream from southern waters.

Kent, Ohio, Has $100,000 Blaze

(International News Service)

Firemen from Kent and four nearby cities and towns fought the blaze for nearly nine hours. Cause of the fire was not determined.

ASK STREET PAVING

When council convened in the city building today they received a petition from property-owners in Morris street between Sharp street and Balph avenue which asked that the section be graded and paved. Under their plan the WPA would furnish the labor and the city the materials, the cost of the latter to be assessed against the properties. The petition was referred to committee for future consideration.

CARVES STONE WITH FINGERNAILS!

David Driscoll at work; top, some specimens

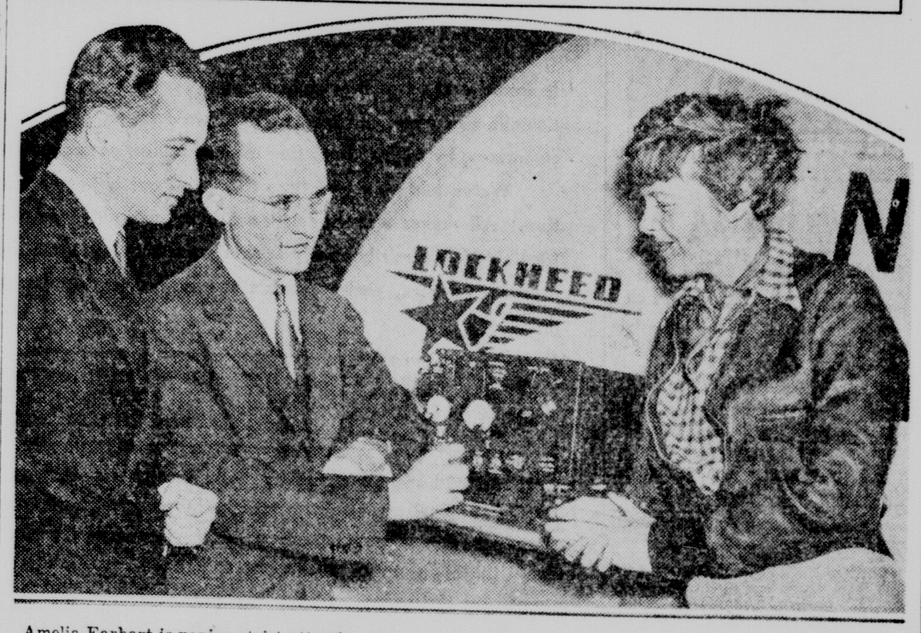

Human fingernails which have become knives, so sharp they can cut stone and fashion statues, plaques and cane heads—such are the fingernails of David Driscoll, of Springfield, O. Driscoll says he began his unusual work one day after watching a dog scratching at a stone and it actually was cutting away the stone with his toe nails. To date, Driscoll has completed 24 carvings, shown in photo above. The 24 pieces required 4,830 hours of real work. He says his fingernails grow one-sixteenth of an inch a week and he uses but one nail a day so as to give the other nails a chance to grow.

Four Youths Held for Robbing Dead Man

Los Angeles police are investigating the activities of these four boys, who, they say, cleared the mystery surrounding the death, eight months ago, of Herman Jacobs, 40, World War veteran. They are said to have confessed that on finding Jacobs dead at the wheel of his car, they robbed the body of $115, drove car and corpse to a beach resort, where they frolicked away the money, then drove the car into a vacant lot. Left to right, they are: Frank Dunlap, 16; Arthur Townsend, 14, and Jack and Robert Campbell, 16 and 18. A wave of burglaries has been laid by authorities to the quartet. (Central Press)

Piano students at the University of Utah, Salt Lake City, no longer are compelled to practice wearisome scales. For Prof. Thomas Giles, head of the university piano department, says they are the cause of pianist fatalities. "The wearisome exercises and twiddling of scales is passe," says he, "because students are wasting their time, deadening their music sensibilities and misusing physical energy. They should be started out with simple pieces they would use as a unit." Co-eds Faye Barney, Irene Wolf, Mary Wisner, Sarah Smith and other girls, agree with him.

Test Fog Dispeller for Airports

Originally intended for precipitating metal-bearing smoke from smelters and recovering metals therefrom, this device, demonstrated in New York by its inventor, H. W. St. Clair, is regarded as having possibilities as a fog dispeller over airports. Fog and smoke are dispelled by application of sound waves of from 5,000 to 10,000 cycles frequency. St. Clair is using a smoke-filled glass cylinder for the purpose of demonstration. (Central Press)

into the street. The one man went to the street and disappeared, and the other remained and asked Grannis what he would do if he didn't leave. Grannis said he told him that he would have him carried out if he didn't go. He said the man then picked up his hat and left. The third man went to the alley in the rear of the house, Grannis stated.

He said he walked to the alley in the rear of his house, thence up to Home street, back to Moravia, and then down and went in the front door of his home. Someone wanted to know what had become of the third man. He said he went out and looked then and found him sitting between the buildings, near the rear of his house. He recognized him as Officer Dukes. Mr. Dukes was sitting on the ground, he said, and had taken off his shoe and was trying to get his sock off.

Took Dukes To Hospital

Grannis said that he told Dukes to keep the sock on. He said that Dukes asked if the other two men had left yet, and when he told him that they had, that Dukes asked him to take him to the hospital. He helped him to get to his (Dukes') car, which was parked just below Grannis' home on Moravia street. He said that Dukes asked for a cigaret when he got into the car. He said Dukes was conscious but that he did not talk to him on the way to the hospital.

Grannis stated that he noticed injures to his nose and to his ankle. The ankle was badly torn and was bleeding severely, he stated. The bone was protruding through the flesh.

On further questioning, Grannis stated that when he arrived at the scene of the fight that he saw one man standing on Officer Dukes legs, while the other man was kicking him about the body. He said he saw the men drive away afterwards in their car, going east on Home street. He noticed that the machine was a green Ford V-8 sedan. It had one of its windows shattered.

He saw these men afterwards, following their arrest and recognized them as Sam Traci and Angelo Pedonesi, he said. Traci was the man who was standing on Officer Dukes, while Pedonesi was the one who was kicking him, he said.

He said he was assisted in taking Dukes to the hospital by a Mr. Shell and a Mr. Cowles. There were about 200 people standing around when the fight ended, he stated, as it was nearing time for the turns to change at the mill and the mill workers were coming and going.

Doctor Testifies

Dr. Samuel W. Perry, Sr. told of being summoned to treat Officer Dukes at the New Castle hospital on the afternoon of February 9. He said that Officer Dukes complained of having a lot of pain. He found a laceration between the eyes, and found the nose broken. He found a laceration of the left ankle, about three inches in extent and a compound fracture of the ankle. The bone protruded through the flesh. The artery which supplied the foot and leg was severed and had to be tied up. Considerable manipulation was required to reduce the fracture. It was necessary to put the patient to sleep to do this, he stated. The ankle was then packed and put in a cast.

He said that Officer Dukes was given tetanus and gas gangrene serum to prevent complications, he seemed to be suffering from a severe nervous shock, as he perspired profusely, and that this condition continued. He said the patient was unable to sleep and complained of severe pain, and that his condition seemed to indicate this. He did not sleep until Friday, he stated.

Saturday morning, he said Mr. Dukes' heart became bad and they introduced glucose into his viens. He said Dr. Shoaff was called in, and they made an examination of the leg. The toes had turned blue, indicating gangrene. The caste was taken off, and it was found that ganrene had developed. He returned to see him about 4:30 Saturday afternoon. The patient died shortly after that time.

He said that Mr. Dukes had evidently tried to walk on his injured leg and had driven the bone down into the ground. He said that every precaution had been taken to avoid gangrene, because of the fact that the wound was filled with dirt.

Tells Of Autopsy

Dr. Paris A. Shoaff was next summoned. He stated that he had conducted an autopsy on the body of Officer Dukes following his death in the New Castle hospital. Gangerne had developed in the injured leg, it was found.

There was no indication of any injuries except the broken ankle and the broken nose. There was no fracture of the skull, he said. Parts of the brain and kidneys were removed and sent to a pathologist, as his condition seemed to indicate an embolus might have developed from the severed artery, due to a tiny piece of fat from the bone getting into the blood stream, evidence of which would be found in the brain or kidneys. A portion of the liver was also sent to a pathologist for examination, as this is the point where gangrene shows up next after affecting the area near the wound.

There was no doubt that death had resulted as a result of the injuries to Mr. Dukes leg, however, Dr. Shoaff stated.

The jury which heard the testimony was composed of R. L. Little, Thomas E. Cowles, Paul F. Stark, Charles E. Allen, J. N. McCandless and James A. George.

Committee Agrees On Provisions Of Coal Refulation

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The House ways and means committee today agreed upon provisions of the revised Vinson-Guffey bill for regulation of the bituminous coal industry.

Chairman Doughton (D) of North Carolina said he hoped to call the measure up for passage in the House this week and send it on to the Senate for further action.

Doughton explained the committee had to reach an agreement on new provisions of the revised bill before it could undertake to report it out. He said the measure probably would be reported favorably to the House this afternoon.

A major change was made in the bill when the committee decided to recommend a tax of 20 per cent instead of 15 per cent as carried in the bill originally introduced in this session.

Find Girl In Dean's Jail Cell

Investigation Of Conditions In Detroit City Jail Will Result

DEAN'S CELL ON NINTH FLOOR

(International News Service)

DETROIT, Feb. 22.—Finding of a pretty girl in the cell of Dayton Dean, Black Legion killer, today led to a widespread police investigation of conditions in the city jail here.

Dean, police said, kept a three-hour tryst with the girl, Lucille Turner, of Asheville, N. C., Saturday night and admitted flirtations with other women prisoners in the jail for some time.

Dean's cell, equipped with radio and private bath, was on the ninth floor of Detroit's skyscraper jail, directly above the eighth floor sewing room of the women's detention department.

The Black Legion triggerman, being held here while awaiting transfer to prison to serve a life term for the night ride murder of Charles A. Poole, confessed, police said, that he had been exchanging notes with women in the jail for some time by lowering them from the window with a string and safety pin.

Talks To Girls

He also said he managed to talk to several of the girls, using a ventilator pipe as an improvised telephone. In that way, he said, he managed to learn the names of several of the women.

Saturday night, after Miss Turner, held a runaway from her home, was reported missing, and a three-hour search of the jail finally led to her discovery behind a shower curtain in the bathroom of Dean's cell. She claimed she climbed in through the cell windows.

Patrolman Ralph Hall said the girl was "fighting mad" when she was found. She was fully dressed.

Comparing soy beans with other legumes and common cereals, Dr. Le Clerc asserted soy beans are appreciably richer in total minerals, especially in sodium, potassium, magnesium, Calcium, phosphorus and sulphur.

In these mineral constituents, he added, soy bean flour far surpasses any of our common foods, such as cereals, legumes, vegetables, fruits, meats, nuts, milk and eggs. Soy bean flour is one of the richest sources of lime. It is practically free from starch, containing less than one per cent. Try the wonderful bread. Sold exclusively at

EXPECT EARLE'S BUDGET MESSAGE WEDNESDAY

Chief Executive To Map Program

Relief Problem Is Big Uncertainty Facing State For Coming Year

SUM TO BE NEEDED IS UNCERTAINTY

By FREDERICK N. POLANGIN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Feb. 22—Gov. George H. Earle today prepared to lay the cornerstone of his "mandate" program with the presentation to the 132nd general assembly of his thrice-postponed budget message Wednesday.

The chief executive, now assured some $70,000,000 in PWA funds for an institutional building program, will present a complete budget to the legislature, including a relief estimate.

As the Democratic-controlled assembly returned for its eighth week, administration leaders remained uncommunicative on what the commonwealth's fiscal program will be for the coming biennium beginning June 1. They were agreed, however, that it will enable the general assembly to get down to "serious business" following seven weeks of relative inactivity.

It was generally understood that Pennsylvanians will not be burdened with increased taxes, with the possibility some decreases will be forthcoming. With the aid of the recently enacted self-assessing provision for all corporation tax collections, leaders hoped to start the 1937-39 biennium with a clean slate including the wiping out of a $36,000,000 deficit "inherited" from the Pinchot administration.

Relief Is Question.

Still remaining the question mark was the relief situation, clouded as it is with all sorts of difficulties in Harrisburg and Washington.

It was a matter of conjecture as to what the chief executive would recommend for the 1937-39 relief appropriation. Any recommendation he might make, it was pointed out, would be subject to a given type of relief and public assistance administration, still a matter of controversy within and without the administration's fold.

Governor Earle has three choices: To accept parts or the whole of the Goodrich report, recommending consolidation of all public assistance and relief agencies to be financed, principally, by the state; to await the report of the Thompson joint legislative committee on relief, or to devise his own "compromise" plan.

Democratic chieftains, however, admitted the relief estimate can, at best, be only a "dummy" one, to be revised from time to time as congress' and the legislature's program unfolds.

Brightening the governor's fiscal prospects was President Roosevelt's placing some $70,000,000 at the commonwealth's disposal to carry out a $56,150,000 institutional building program. Of this amount $20,000,000 was to go for labor, $15,000,000 for WPA and $5,000,000 for non-relief workers.

The $15,000,000 allotment was expected to take some 30,000 men off WPA rolls, thus relieving the commonwealth's relief burden by that number through a transfer of employables from the relief to WPA payroll.

Little was expected to be accomplished in the legislative halls tonight, save for the introduction of minor bills and action upon relatively unimportant calendars. The legislators will for the most part be taken up with exercises commemorating George Washington's birthday.

Ready for final passage in the senate, however, was the Ruth resolution creating a legislative committee to investigate Pennsylvania's court system.

THE RIGHT CHOICE

ROCKAWAY, Ore.—A pair of timber fallers saved the life of a yearling doe when the deer was chased by dogs. The exhausted animal faced either death from the dogs or a chance on the two timber fallers, and she chose the latter course—dropping wearily to the ground a short distance from them. The men had to chase the dogs away three times before the deer rested sufficiently to bound away into the woods.

Members of the committee of the Lawrence County Bar Association are in Harrisburg today where they will endeavor to convince the state senate of the injustice of the Eroe ripper bill which would deprive Lawrence county of one judge. Weingartner and Attorney Marshall Matheny have gone to the capital representing the association.

The annual eating-meeting of the lawyers will take place on Saturday night, February 27, it was announced today but the program, the menu, and a few other details are missing as yet. The annual affair is always an event for the lawyers, calories take the place of capiases, and writs are superseded by skits. Waist lines are forgotten, also political lines, and the legal lads do a job of eating.

New tax notices are being prepared by the county commissioners for use in the county treasurer's office. The present system is not quite as efficient as the officials want and it is planned to install a system that will give the treasurer a better record than he now has. In some counties machines are used which give the taxpayer a detailed receipt and also leave a permanent record with the treasurer.

The relief load in Lawrence county is about stationary according to Welfare Officer Edwin O. Reed. The new cases are offset by the ones taken off, but it is expected that the expense this year will show a decrease over the past five previous years.

Failure To Send Children To School Causes His Arrest

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Feb. 22.—Arrested for the second time in 10 days on a charge of failing to send his children to school, J. C. Calhoun, colored resident of Liberty township, will be arraigned before Justice Thomas McClain, Jr., Mercer, at a later date.

Calhoun was arrested early last week and served two days in the county jail after refusing to pay a small fine. At that time he was warned that he must keep his children in school.

New trouble flared when he withdrew two children from school after his eldest son had been expelled for disobedience. The township board of education upheld the teacher's action after learning particulars in the case.

Officials said the boy who had been expelled will be brought before juvenile court on an incorrigibility charge.

Picked Up In Other Papers

There is news every day at Ashland, O., if "man bites dog" is still the criterion. Every time two-year-old David Sponsler gets a nip from his Beagle puppy, Spot, he bites right back, according to the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Even 'tho the boy is five rounds ahead it is no case for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals association because the dog asks for it, thinking it quite a "snappy" little game. It seems that David, when younger, developed the habit of biting people. To break him of this his mother would bite him. Now David follows the same nip for a nip rule in governing his pet.

Roosevelt Fiancee Rests Comfortably

Miss Ethel Dupont Operated Upon For Appendicitis At Washington

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Reported resting comfortably after a restful night, Miss Ethel DuPont, 21, fiancee of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., was looking forward today to the arrival here of her mother, Mrs. Eugene DuPont, of Wilmington, Del.

Mrs. DuPont had accompanied her daughter and young Roosevelt from Florida to the White House but left the mansion before Miss DuPont was stricken with acute appendicitis.

Miss DuPont's condition became so grave that she was removed from the White House to Emergency Hospital yesterday in a naval ambulance and operated upon by Comdr. Morton D. Willcutts, of the U. S. naval staff.

Young Roosevelt and Mrs. James Roosevelt accompanied her to the hospital and paced the corridors nervously while she was in the operating room. A few months ago the situation was just the reverse; Roosevelt was in a Boston hospital, where he underwent an operation for sinus trouble, and Miss DuPont was his constant visitor.

Civil service commission having submitted a list of 10 eligibles for the police department, it is probable that Mayor Charles E. McGrath soon will recommend several permanent appointments. The examination was held in December and of 23 who received the test 10 passed.

According to a recent report of Dr. William L. Steen, almost daily examinations of drinking water here was made last year by the health officer. Samples of water also was collected from private wells and springs also were tested. A very close check is kept on water here. Milk sold here is also examined.

The open winter has kept the street department employes busy ashing streets. A huge supply was collected last summer ostensibly for ashing streets made slippery by snow and ice. However, there have been few occasions that it has been necessary this winter to ash streets owing to ice and snow.

New Coupe Also Is Light Truck

The latest innovation in light trucks, or commercial cars, is this Utility Coupe Pick-Up which is being introduced as part of the new line of Terraplane Commercial Cars. The new car is changed from passenger to business car by a sliding steel pick-up box, which offers a surprisingly large amount of loading space. The picture shows the new Utility Coupe with pick-up box extended to its full length (it can be pulled out to any one of three positions). The steel box, which is mounted on rubber covered metal rollers, is 49½ inches long, 38 inches wide, 11⅝ inches deep and has a loading height of 32 inches under the rear deck door. This door may be removed. In announcing the new model, the company stated that a survey of many lines of business revealed that this type of car is amazingly well suited to the needs of many businesses.

Your Income Tax In A Nutshell

DEDUCTION FOR DEPRECIATION

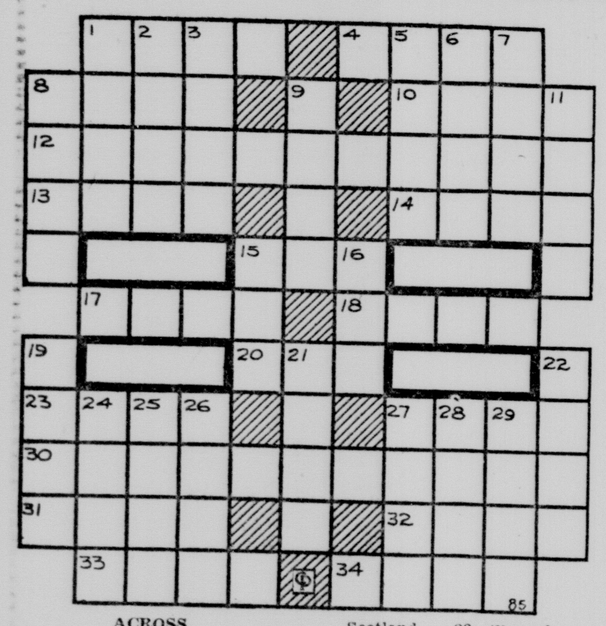

The revenue act provides for "a reasonable allowance for the exhaustion, wear and tear of property used in the trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for obsolescence." For convenience, such allowance usually is referred to as depreciation.

In claiming a deduction for depreciation several fundamental principles be confined to property actually used in trade, business, profession, and to improvements on real property, other than property used by the taxpayer as his personal residence. In general, it applies to the taxpayer's capital assets—buildings, machinery, etc.—the cost of which cannot be deducted as a business expense.

A lawyer, doctor or other professional man may not charge off as a current expense the cost of a library used wholly in his profession, this being a capital expenditure and the library a capital asset, but he may deduct an allowance for depreciation based upon the useful life of the library. If part of a professional man's residence is used by him for office purposes, a proportionate amount of the depreciation sustained may be deducted, based generally on the ratio of the number of rooms used for such purposes to the total number of rooms in the building. The same principle applies if a taxpayer rents to others a portion of his residence. Under such conditions, however, the taxpayer must include in his gross income the rentals received.

Young trees occasionally are killed outright by the girdling of the sapsucker, but larger trees recover from the injuries, although the blemishes may never disappear.

Plan Changes In 'Sky Laws'

Amendments To Laws Governing Aviation Are Being Considered

MEASURE WILL SOON BE COMPILED

By J. WILLIAM THEIS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Feb. 22.—Legal teeth for Pennsylvania's present "sky laws" and a new requirement calling for registration of all airmen and aircraft in the state are included in still pending legislative proposals of the "air-minded" Earle administration.

Although being drafted, it was learned today, bills sponsored by the state division of aeronautics for introdution in the legislature may not be ready for another fortnight.

Probably of principal interest to pilots, mechanics and plane owners—mainly the latter—will be the administration recommendation for state registration of all classes of airmen and aircraft already licensed by the federal government.

Amend Existing Laws.

At least three amendments to existing laws also are planned setting forth clearly that:

1—Operators of all aircraft, whether the plane is qualified or unqualified under federal regulations, shall be held "financially responsible" for damages resulting from negligent or improper operations.

2—Airport obstructions — poles, towers, buildings and the like—of more than 35 feet in height will be prohibited anywhere within a 15-to-one glide, about 525 feet, of field boundaries.

3—Pilots may not carry intoxicated passengers, on penalty of fine or possible imprisonment.

Pilots, licensed engine mechanics and airplane mechanics, under the proposed registration bill, would be required to pay a small licensing fee, probably no greater than that of the present automobile driver's license, of $2.

State Licensing Fee.

Plane owners would pay a state licensing fee for their craft, based upon engine horse-power ratings.

The revenues derived, it was pointed out, would help defray the administration and operation expenses of the division of aeronautics headed by Major Cammy Vinet. The division operates a fleet of cabin planes, employs four pilot-inspectors under Vinet.

Pennsylvania has about 700 licensed pilots of all grades—including student flyers—approximately 450 licensed engine mechanics and 300 licensed airplane mechanics.

There are about 500 licensed planes in the commonwealth, varying in horse-power from the lightest two-cylinder motred ships to heavy transports powered up to 1,000 horse-power. From this source would come the greatest revenue, officials explained.

Involved in the matter of curbing airport obstructions is the constitutional question of "air ownership" as against strict land ownership. Despite this troublesome court issue—whether the ownership of land owns also the air above his property—the administration bill would allow the state to condemn property constituting airport obstructions as defined in the proposed measure.

LANDMARKS AT ITHAN

Do you know that the building in which is located the post office at Ithan is more than 200 years old?

Ithan is located in Delaware county, 12 miles from Philadelphia, and is the oldest town near that city. Here is an old Quaker meeting house which was established in 1780! a school house which dates back to 1780. It also boasts of Old St. Davids church, where Mad Anthony Wayne is buried.

At one time in the history of the town all the business of both city hall and the local township was transacted from what is now the post office.

Security Act Hurts Gangsters

New York Pluguglies Scurry To Get On Payrolls To Avoid Vagrancy Charges

SHADY HOTEL PROFANES BIBLE

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Diary: Out in a blizzardy swirl and came upon Theodore Dreiser, muffled in a great coat, plunging along head downward. And put in to see Lee Olwell, who told a rollicking tale about a mountaineer. All the good stories of late being about hill-billies.

O. O. McIntyre

At my mail and a cheerio from Elsie Robinson and a brave screed from Rube Goldberg. And came a garland of flowers from a long time and highly beloved friend, Col. Henry L. Doherty. And reading some Roscoe Peacock observations about Florida and out in the car, carrying Billy Gaxton across town.

To dinner with my lady at Theodore's, and Anne and Will Hamilton and Lois Long at a near table. And we swapped yarns until late. Will Hamilton being as excellent a conversationalist as I know. And Lois Long so slim I scarcely knew her and prettier than ever.

The National Security Act has tossed a chill into the gangster world and has, in reality, become a Carte de Identity system such as heckles visitors in France. A mobster has to have his security card or be able to prove his calling or is a setup for a vagrancy charge. As a result, the racketeers are palming themselves off as "sales representatives," "clerks" and the like. Many are paying not too altruistic small shopkeepers to put their names on the payroll.

All of which recalls a certain shady hotel that obtains the epitome of espial and suspicion. It has all sorts of locks, bars, peep-holes, blind exits and sundry gadgets to protect the underworld patrons, forming its biggest clientele. The "safe" rooms and apartments are triple priced and a special guard to patrol the hall outside is available. But the crowning touch is the quaint way in which they have stamped the name of the inn in letters an inch high on the Gideon Bibles.

Personal nomination for the up-and-comingest of the newer orchestra leaders—Johnny Green.

There has been a slow-up of high jinks in that indeterminable social tsatus bracketed as "cafe society." The possessors of aristocratic names who cross the Broadway line to mingle with folk who have no hope of ever achieving the Social Register. There is speculation as to whether the Archbishop of Canterbury's blast at the international crowd made the New York members feel a shade self-conscious. Anyway something has happened. Not so much waving and aisle strutting at first nights. Nor poising at entrance ropes for a "Look at me!" Which for those who hate show-offery and altitude striking is perfectly jim-dandy.

The sudden dart of a bat in a darkened theatre during a matinee almost touched off a panic recently. Nothing in the animal kingdom inspires such creepiness as the bat. "The giddy flitter mice with leather wings," as Shakespeare called them. Llewelyn Powys once wrote that the imagination of the dullest country oaf would give instant response to the sight of a bat dead on the granary floor. The bat is something from the goblin world. It has upset the serenity of thousands of parlor lamps by sudden appearance and sent beholders to bed in the shudder of a sleepless night. Next to a burglar in the dead of darkness, there is no terror like it. I know, for one was kittering about last night.

WASHINGTON AT A GLANCE

Liberals Turn On Court Plan

Many Progressives, Who Have Been New Dealers, Against Proposed Change

FATE TAKES IRONIC TURN

Central Press
Washington Bureau
602 Times-Herald Bldg.

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Is it not rather odd that Congress' progressives, who have been enthusiastic New Dealers, regardless of their various party labels, by no means are friendly, generally speaking, to President Roosevelt's plan to liberalize the federal courts, especially the supreme tribunal?

Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin is an exception. There are a few ultra-liberals among representatives who are for the Roosevelt program, too.

But it isn't the rule.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, who was radical enough to have campaigned as runningmate of the present Senator La Follette's father on an independent presidential ticket in 1924 and still is one of Capitol Hill's most advanced political thinkers, is downright vicious in denunciation of the Rooseveltian suggestion. Though not so bitter as Wheeler, Senator George Norris of Nebraska also is in opposition.

MILITANTLY HOSTILE

In short, old-time congressional liberals, on a average, seem rather more militantly hostile than any other group to the presidential scheme.

I know senators and representatives, who in the past, have said harsher things of the supreme court than I would like to quote, but now are as violently against having it packed, as they say, as the most irreconcilable among the so-called reactionaries. Or even more so.

Conservative objection to the proposal was to have been expected, of course.

It would be ironic, however, if the White House's formula for the limitation of the high court's power should be defeated by the very folk who have been clamoring for it for a generation.

PLANS UPSET

The explanation evidently is that the liberals had been working along the line of a constitutional amendment.

That's a slow process.

President Roosevelt hit on a short cut.

The liberals had reckoned that they were operating in a fashion approved by the administration. It suddenly changed its method without consulting them. Maybe they disagreed with this change in principle. Maybe they were angered at not being asked whether they liked it or not. Pure jealousy may have been a factor in the equation.

Anyway, they didn't take to the presidential idea.

SURPRISING?

The administration wasn't a bit surprised at conservatism's adverse tone to its supreme court plan.

It was more than a bit nonplused at radicalism's reaction.

It had a right to be upset by the radicals' attitude; it had counted on radicalism 100 per cent.

But perhaps the radicals also were entitled to feel that they were taken all-of-a-heap.

JUDGE ROSEMAN

It can't be denied that President Roosevelt's supreme court plan was disclosed, if not evolved, suddenly.

The question often is asked:

"Who thought it up?"

Apparently the answer is that it was thought up by Judge Samuel Roseman, now of the New York supreme court bench.

Judge Roseman was Franklin D. Roosevelt's legal adviser when the latter was governor of New York. He has been a recent visitor at the White House. Naturally he knows the difference between constitutionality and mere legislation.

Folk draw their conclusions.

The cognosticenti draw the conclusion that the federal court's proposed reorganization is Judge Roseman's.

Career Books Are Grouped At Library

Miss Alice Joyce Choses Books As Aid In Finding Life Work

Have you yet chosen your career, or are you interested in how success is attained in other careers? If so, Miss Alice Joyce, children's librarian of the free public library, has compiled a list of the books on her shelves dealing with the various vocations. These are now arranged on a special marked shelf and may be secured by members of the library by inquiring at the desk in the junior-adult room.

Two groups of books have been arranged, those dealing with careers for boys and those that will interest girls. Whatever your interest might be, Miss Joyce can probably supply reading matter in regard to it.

If you have a yearning for exploring, a book entitled "Adventures in the African Jungles," by Akeley, has been made available. Forestry, "Bob Flame, Rocky Mountain Ranger," by Yeager. The army and navy are both represented by books by Knapp, entitled "Boys' Book of Annapolis" and "Boys' Book of West Point". Another branch of the government service, that of coast guard, is described in the book "Guardsmen of the Coast," by Floherty. "Henry Ford, Motor Genius," comes forth next with a description of big industry. Many young people have a craving for circus life, therefore the book, "Here Comes Barnum," by Ferris, tells of the life in a circus. Future aviators are advised to read the book "We," by Lindbergh. The book of Thomas Alvah Edison by Wise, is recommended for students interested in science. These books are recommended for reading by boys.

Max Baer Will Train Hard For Pastor Battle

It's Different Maxie Baer Than The One Who Lost To Joe Louis

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Max Baer always had a million-dollar body, but there were times when his voice and actions indicated he had a 10-cent head.

Today, at 28, he still has that streamlined body, but his head—if not of the Einstein variety—at least has improved enough to teach him the error of his former ways.

For we now have with us a new Max Baer. An unbelievably modest-speaking, sensibly-attuned Baer, and the metamorphosis is all for the better.

Will Train Hard

Max is going to attempt a comeback with his former heavyweight title as his goal. And he's going to go at it in a sensible way. Where once he would have roared into town, boasting about his prowess and proceeded to train in the night club and mazda belt, he now is going to retire to a quiet camp in New Jersey and prepare for a bout with Bob Pastor.

Strangely enough, a victory over Pastor will put him right back in the limelight, which is a sad commentary on the class of our current crop of heavyweights. After all, asks Max, what heavyweights are there around? He names them for you. Jim Braddock, Joe Louis, Max Schmeling, Bob Pastor and himself.

Will Make Effort

"I think," said Max in a curiously diffident way today, "I can take Pastor. Remember, I don't say I sure will, but I am going to make a real try. I realize now that I was just a goofy kid—a good-time Charley—when I had the title, but now I've finally grown up and I'm going to try to give the public a run for its money, which is something I didn't always do before.

"My wife made me realize what a sap I've been, but now you're going to see a sincere Max for a change. If I don't make good, Max Baer is liable to become bare Max, with no cheers in sight.

"Don't let anybody kid you about the cheers. That's what a fighter misses most when he's through. That applause is music to us just like it is to an actor."

Sixto Escobar Defeats Salica

By HYPE IGOE
International News Service Sports Writer

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rica, Feb. 22.—This town has had its world's championship boxing bout and today it is very happy.

The principal reason for the joy is a local lad's successful defense of the bantamweight championship. Sixto Escobar was the successful defender, and his rival over the 15-round bout was Lou Salica, of New York.

The town is also happy because the folks hoped to put over an orderly and successful show. This they did, more than $40,000 falling into the till. Orderly and good-natured was the crowd.

Some Lines From Yesteryear

In the early 90's, a New Castle Independent football team registered a last-minute 5-0 victory over Westminster college. Charley Mayne, former mayor, a member of the local team, relates the "old sawdust play" which resulted in the triumph. With a minute or less left, the linesmen on the Independent team filled their hands with sawdust and just as the ball was snapped by Walter Reynolds, center, the players tossed dust into their opponents' face. The result was a touchdown, which counted five points in those days. The game was played behind a hotel in New Wilmington. Mayne, Walter Reynolds, Jerry Klingensmith were members of the New Castle eleven. . . . Charley Mayne was also among the first New Castle athletes to play Rugby football, many years ago. According to old-timers, Lou "Scrappy" Bullano was probably the outstanding all-around Italian-American athlete of yesteryears . . . Ever since 1910, Anthony "Kiski" Marino, one of the better known authorities in football here, has been watching grid games. He came from Saltsburg . . . Speaking of independent grid teams, the old American Legion eleven is reputed as being the best independent aggregations ever assembled. The team played back in 1919 and some of the members were "Miz" Dart, "Toots" Custer, Bud Fleeger, Kiski Marino, Charles Augustine, Tully Bevan, Kemp, Patton, McDonald, Cutler, Maine, Bruno, "Tuffy" Thomas. Canton Bulldogs, Akron, Burns club of Pittsburgh were some of the foes the Legion eleven opposed.

Old-timers claim the American Legion-Koka football game, for the Lawrence county independent title, played about 20 years ago, was without a doubt one of the most thrilling battles of yesteryears. Played at Cascade Park, the contest drew a capacity crowd. Referee was Sheriff Edward Pritchard, and Attorney Orville Brown acted in the capacity of umpire.

The Legion team was favored to walk away with the game. At game time the Legion team appeared on the field. Tuffy Thomas was the only missing gridder on the squad. As the teams lined up Thomas appeared on the South Side team. The game ended in a 0-0 count. Dr. Horner coached the Legionnaires.

Titans Win From Waynesburg 50-32

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Feb. 22 Scoring their highest in offensive power for the season, the Westminster Titans kept a four-year winning record on their home-floor clean by defeating the Waynesburg Wolfpack, a conference threat, by a 50-32 score. In a curtain-raiser, the Titan frosh took a 35-17 game from Punxsutawney high.

In the first half, Backus took the spotlight in scoring by ringing up four field-goals, all from the deep side, while Demo was adding three more-one-handed tosses. But in the second frame, Grubb got loose from his opposition-guards long enough to ring up six goals and three free ones for 15 points, the high-point scoring mark of the evening.

The victory over Waynesburg gives the Titans an excellent chance for conference honors, since they have lost only one game to Bethany on the West Virginia court, 44-34. If the Roarkmen can tumble Geneva and Waynesburg on their own floors, they will have the conference honors in the bag.

Krivosh, Titan guard, played a beautiful defensive game, retrieving bankboard shots and feeding the ball into the Titan scorers. Coach Roark used only six men, while Waynesburg threw ten men into the fight to stop the Titan scoring.

Clark, ace-scorer for the Wolfpack, had but little chance to show his scoring power, and came out of the game with only five points.

Krivosh opened the scoring with two free ones, and Penn made a charity toss for Waynesburg. Penn's toss tied the score three all after Demo made one of two foul shots. The Titans then went on a scoring spree with buckets by Demo directly under and two by Backus from the deep side. Demo added another from in front and the Roarkmen took an 11-3 advantage. Following E. Bouldins' long shot, Backus took two more from the side. E. Bouldin added four points to the Wolfpack total with a bucket and two free ones. Simmers toss brought the visitors to within two points of the Titans, 15-13; but Gilliland's free toss and Demo's deep-side shot gave Westminster a five point advantage at the half, 18-13.

The Titan offensive continued in the second half, but with a new figure in the spotlight, Ken Grubb, Youngstown guard, who scored 15 points in the half. Throughout the second half, the Titans kept the score doubled. At the eight minute mark, Coach Wolf of Waynesburg sent in fresh men, including his scoring ace, Clark; but the Titans kept pace with the Wolfmen in the scoring. While the Wolfmen were gathering 19 points in the second frame, the Titans add 32.

The half ended with Miller's one-handed toss for two points to bring the Titans up to the 50 mark.

Breezy Sport Notes Around Pennsylvania

By ED KIELY
International News Service Sports Writer

(Pinch-hitting for Dick Shaner.)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 22.—When the pinch hitting Penn paragrapher queried the Pirate officials today on the number of holdouts still remaining, a spokesman for the club said: "We haven't any actual holdouts, just a few of the boys haven't signed." So, it seems none of the Pirate roster has a "Dizzy Dean complex", but five of the players just "haven't signed". It is said, however, when Jim Weaver, Pirate pitcher, comes for a conference with the Buc officials, scheduled for today, terms will be reached, and the non-signers will drop to four.

Jesse Owens, who'll race anything—for money—is scheduled to invade the Keystone state, but this time to lead his Sepia Syncopators to the tune of Heigh-De-Ho. Yowsah, Jesse and his band will swing high-swing low for the dancers in the commonwealth. Owens, who claims you can't keep a wife and a growing family on Olympic medals, figures he will net enough on his orchestra tour to keep his family across the legendary railroad tracks, permanently.

Pennsylvania and St. Joseph basketball teams will battle it out in Philadelphia next Wednesday with the winner being recognized as city champions. Man for man Penn seems to have the better quintet, but with St. Joe's indomitable spirit the game is a toss-up. Penn will be placing its hopes on Frankie Barrett while St. Joseph will center its attack around its center, 'Galopin'" Matt Guokas.

Billy Conn, Pittsburgh's promising middleweight fighter, recently traveled to the west coast with his manager, Johnny Ray, in hopes of obtaining a match with Young Corbett, Frisco middleweight, but, according to reliable sources, Corbett's manager saw the "Smoke City" lad work out and said "no go" on the match.

While there Conn had a difficult time finding sparring partners, and so it was arranged to have him limber up with Max Baer, who at present is in the midst of trying a comeback. Mavie and Billy sparred for three rounds ending with Max feigning a knockout, according to the reports.

Football took the limelight over the week-end with announcement of the selection of two coaches—one collegiate and the other professional. The Pittsburgh professional team announced Johnny Blood of the Green Bay Packers had accepted the Pirate coaching job for next season. Blood succeeds Joe Bach, who resigned recently to become head coach at Niagara university.

Down Reading, Pa., way, Albright college announced the selection of William H. Dietz, freshman coach at Temple U. to replace Clarence Munn, who left Albright to take up line coaching duties at Syracuse. "Lone Star" Dietz, as he is commonly known, was one time coach of the old Boston Redskins in the national professional league.

Track Stars Will Compete In New York

A. A. U. Champions Will Gather At New York City For Meet Next Saturday

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Eastern followers of indoor track and field competition, who spend the rest of the year awaiting arrival of midwinter and the annual fixtures which bring out the nation's best athletes, were positively on edge today, with the star-filled national A. A. U. championships coming up next Saturday night.

A crowd of 16,000 of the worshipers at the shrine of thumping boards were jammed into Madison Square Garden two nights ago for the New York A. C. games, ganging that event just as they had the Millrose and others, but all the rest seem to have been curtain-raisers compared with the forthcoming fixture.

Many Entries Filed

It is simpler to state it this way: Olympians from five nations—United States, Italy, Hungary, Japan, and Canada—four Olympic champions, 28 of the 1936 Olympic stars, 13 defending champions and 30 world record-holders have filed entry for the A. A. U. meet.

And this may be the one in which the downfall of Sundry records will be consummated to assuage disappointment of the spectators who hopefully expected something of this kind last Saturday night.

They say Eddie O'Brien, the in-and-outer from Syracuse, take the 500-yard race in 0:57.6 to break by two-tenths his own world record, but otherwise times were comparatively slow from an international standpoint.

It may be reported, however, that in several instances the competition was blazing, and the spectators, most of whom can be worked into a cheering frenzy over nothing more spectacular than the jouncing, hunching, stiff-legged entrants in a walking race, got a thrill or two.

TALES IN TIDBITS

By BILI BRAUCHER
Central Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 22—An anxious reader wants to know our reaction of the sale of Babe Dahlgren, first baseman, by the Red Sox to the Yankees for $10,000....our reaction is that Owner Tom Yawkey of the Red Sox is getting back pretty easily at least part of that $3,000,000 he has spent for ball players...and we do not think Mister Dahlgren will be playing first base for the Yankees when the middle of April rolls merrily around.

Another reader asks if Bob Feller really has the stuff or if he will turn out to be just a flash in the pan...our answer to that one is: we think Bob Feller has the stuff, and that he will win 14 games for Cleveland this year, averaging eight strikeouts or more per nine innings ...how's that for scrambling out on a limb?

While we are about this business, we may as well clean up the rest of the mail on our desk, except one from Pittsburgh, which asks why we don't wise up and pick the Pirates to win the pennant this year...the reason we are not picking Pittsburgh, of course, is that the club hasn't been so hot since losing Hans Wagner by graduation.

Hecker's Deeds

A man who signs himself E. L. K. wants to know about Guy Hecker... the notion has been bruited about that Hecker pitched, caught, played first base and the outfield in the same game...this one sent us to the library, where, after some pawing around o'er many a quaint and curious volume of forgotten lore, the facts about Guy Hecker were unearthed, and we here present the astonishing record. In a game at Cincinnati, Oct. 9, 1887, Guy Hecker played first base for Louisville and in nine full innings did not make a putout. In a game at Louisville, Aug. 15, 1886, Hecker established a major league record that never has been surpassed by scoring seven runs in a nine-inning game, the score of which was Louisville 22, Baltimore 5. In a game as Louisville, Sept. 19, 1882, Guy Hecker pitched a no-hit game against Pittsburgh, Louisville winning by a score of 3 to 1....on the Louisville team in the games when Hecker scored his seven run and did not get a putout at first, the second baseman was a man named Mack...we understand Mack later became manager of a team at Philadelphia.

All the Same Rules.

A Miss Wilma Forrester seems to be in doubt about fistic matters... she writes to ask what sort of scoring rules New York judges use in reaching so many strange decisions ...well, sister, they all use the same rules, but in a world like ours, so full of shoes and ships and sealing wax and a number of things (and yes, there is a Santa Claus), it can only be expected that many assorted mentalities will be found...psychopathic wards offer a great deal of interesting data on this delicate subject.

There are several other communications, including one from Iowa asking how to lay out a baseball diamond, one from Pennsylvania asking why Fred Clarke isn't in the Hall of Fame and one from Ohio requesting some facts on the career of Ike Weir, the Belfast Spider. These we have answered personally, acting on the fear you might not be interested in seeing the replies here.

Pioneer Banker Dies On Saturday

J. A. Gelbach, 74, Succumbs At Home After Illness Of Three Years

IMPORTANT FACTOR IN CITY GROWTH

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 22.—Ellwood City is grief stricken today with the passing of one of its most beloved and beneficial pioneer residents, as John Adam Gelbach, 74, died Saturday morning at 11:30 at his home on Fountain avenue after an illness of three years.

In the winter of 1933 Mr. Gelbach fell and fractured his hip, from which he never recovered. His advanced age prevented a proper healing and his health began to fail.

The life story of Mr. Gelbach is a like a story book of success. From an obscure country boy who had only a primary education in a country school, he hurdled his difficulties and handicap to rise to the topmost heights of the business world and became recognized as one of the leading bankers of the district.

Mr. Gelbach was born in Butler county, the son of Phillip and Sophia Gelbach, being one of seven children. He was preceded in death by his parents, four brothers and two sisters. After spending his early life on the farm Mr. Gelbach came to Zelienople where he went into the mercantile and banking business as a young man. In 1891 he was married to Mary Lusk here. Five years later the young couple decided to stake their future in the opening of a new community—Ellwood City, only ten miles away. It wasnot long after moving here that Mr. Gelbach opened the city's first bank. In his 41 years residence here Mr. Gelbach played a prominent and active part in the growth and development of Ellwood City. He watched the community grow from a resort town to a thriving and prosperous manufacturing city to overshadow the small community he had previously come from. He remained in the banking business as president of the First National Bank here until his retirement in 1935.

The deceased is survived by his widow, two sons, Loring L. Gelbach of Cleveland, O. and Myron S., of Youngstown, O.; and one daughter, Mrs. Reed Carpenter of Washington, D. C. There are also six grandchildren. The two sons had been associated with their father here in the banking business. The deceased was a staunch member of the First Presbyterian church which he served as an elder for many years. He also belonged to the local Masonic Order and the Syria Shrine of Pittsburgh.

Funeral services were conductd this aftrnoon at two o'clock from the late home. A private burial was held.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL

Well we have one Civic Club here in New Castle that is not dead . . . that is the Townsmen . . . they sure know how to put on a dance . . . the one Saturday night was one to be proud of . . . it was the high light for the month of February . . . the Townsmen if you are ignorant of the fact is made up of the young business men of New Castle, there is quite a bunch of them and mighty fine fellows if you really want to know.

* * *

Of course when your snooper attends a dance he is always on the outlook for interesting affairs . . . well there was plenty to look at Saturday night . . . first thing and the high light of the evening was the appearance of our most recent marriage . . . Mr. and Mrs. Paul McWilliams . . . and what an ideal couple they make . . . we were wondering if Paul was compelled to do setting up exercises in the morning . . . for those of you in the fog . . . his wife, formerly Miss Sal McGown, was a Health Ed. teacher.

* * *

I have been called most everything but the best one was the thing I was called the other night . . . Miss Mildred Sneckenberger called yours truly a floor walker . . . just because a flower adorned my lapel . . . be careful you Esquirik birds . . . you might remind some one of a floor walker.

* * *

A couple that have been making their appearance for (as long as I can remember) were there also . . . Miss Helen Weingartner and Robert Hoose . . . isn't love grand.

* * *

The party was not without glamour . . . New Castle's one and only deb. was there in person . . . a more charming person, well she would be hard to find . . . presenting Miss Elizabeth Fowle.

University of Pittsburgh Observatory Is Well Known

PITT'S ALLEGHENY OBSERVATORY

JOHN BRASHEAR

SAMUEL P. LANGLEY

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 22—It took Pitt 150 years to move from log cabin to skyscraper, but it took only half that long for Pitt's scientific research to move from the log cabin to one of the world's most famed astronomical observatories.

And hence, when 25,000 alumni of the University of Pittsburgh celebrate the 150th anniversary of the founding of their alma mater February 25, they will also observe the 70th anniversary of Pitt's famed Allegheny Observatory, one of America's pioneer laboratories for research in the mysteries of the heavens.

Names of two men, associated with the early history of Allegheny Observatory will be revered by Pitt alumni at their susquicentennial dinner.

They are Dr. Samuel P. Langley, world-famed as establisher of the scientific principles which led to development of the airplane and Observatory director for 20 years, and Dr. John Brashear, builder of the Observatory's first telescope.

Dr. Langley never saw the new Allegheny Observatory, built after he went to Washington, D. C., to be secretary of the Smithsonian Institution.

But the late Dr. Langley officiated at ceremonies for dedication of the new laboratory, the smallest of whose three telescopes was the "marvelous instrument" newspaper reporters wrote about back in the days of mustache cups and bustles.

Always since its founding, Allegheny Observatory has "belonged to" the people of Pittsburgh. Seven thousand visitors every year look through the big telescopes.

The first Observatory was built three-quarters of a century ago with publicly-subscribed funds. And at the beginning of the twentieth century, when construction of the new Observatory was begun, Pittsburgh citizens gave $300,000.

Pitt alumni will honor Dr. Langley because he was a pioneer at their school in outstanding scientific research. He came to the Observatory in 1867, after a distinguished career at Harvard University and Annapolis Observatories.

At Pitt he established an accurate solar time telling system, whose service was used by 40 railroads and many factories in Western Pennsylvania.

His measurement of the heat given off by stars million of miles from the earth led to his invention of the bolometer, an instrument widely used in astronomical physics today.

At Pitt, Langley began his experiments with model airplanes, altho on those days they were called "flying machines" and considered an impractical dream. He continued his experiments in Washington, and because of his discoveries is usually credited with being the 'father of aviation."

The work begun by Langley is continued today in Pitt's Observatory high above Pittsburgh in Riverview Park. Chief research is in measurement of star distances. The Observatory is also the "lab" for advanced students in astronomy and physics. Dr. Frank C. Jordan is the present Observatory director.

Hunt Gunmen Who Abducted Four Persons

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 22.—A determined search went on today for a trio of gunmen who abducted and robbed four men, one after the other, along a 13-mile route here.

The kidnap-robbery trail started when two men, flashing guns, stopped Allan Davis, 26, as he paused for a traffic light, forced him into the back seat and drove off with him. They were soon joined by a third man.

When Davis' car ran into a ditch and became mired they stopped, at the point of a gun, a truck and another car, and when they were unable to start any of them, fled thru the woods, with Howard Lager, 37, one of their victims, firing his shotgun after them.

Police said after fleeing through the woods the gunman burst into the home of E. S. Brown and forced him and two companions to drive them toward Lawrenceville where they fled on foot. Their victims, police reported, suffered a loss of $115.50 in cash and jewelry.
